

You know what would be Cool?

Written by Awol

Tuesday, 24 November 2009 10:02 -

A Zombie killing game that is a MMO... Oh Wait there is one coming out that will do that. Undead Labs is making such a game. Very little is known about the game as the press release was more about the company forming and their first project, which would be a zombie MMO for the consoles. From the bits and pieces released it sounds like it can be a very cool idea. They talk about weapons and if you would hold up in a police station or supermarket.

Personally the idea is sound and its about time someone made a zombie killing MMO. I don't even care that it will be only consoles it just sounds fun. Also I don't think is will be a crappy game. The development Studio Undead Labs was founded by Jeff Strain. He has worked at many different well known places. Such at NCSoft, Blizzard, where he worked on StarCraft, Diablo and the beginings parts of World of Warcraft. He then went to start up ArenaNet and Guild Wars. Clearly Jeff Strain has the talent and the ability to give me a kick ass zombie MMO.

Again its too early to know much about the game but I know I will be watching for more news regarding this game.